

The Globe and Mail
Security Planning Key to Protecting Revenue, Reputation

"Companies must elevate security and business continuity planning from a stove-piped IT department responsibility to a primary focus of their senior management and board of directors. Indeed, preparedness should be as important as sales forecasts, share price and the balance sheet."

- - In a contributed article to the Globe and Mail's technology section, Fusepoint CEO Robert Offley underscores that organizations have fiduciary and regulatory responsibility to ensure they can maintain operations and conduct business with customers.

<http://www.theglobeandmail.com>